

Mrs. Marya Zanders
407 E Walnut St
Centerville, IA 52544-3036

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Marya Zanders

Ms. Jill Wile
10955 Lost Lake Dr
Naples, FL 34105-3154

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jill Wile

Ms. Gail Hine
24926 Hayes Ave
Murrieta, CA 92562-7263
(951) 677-8121

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Gail Hine

Ms. BR Lemonik
Peekskill rd
Mahopac, NY 10541

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. BR Lemonik

Dr. James Marden
261 Whitehill St.
Lemont, PA 16851

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. James Marden

Dr. Skot McDaniel
Pastel Lane
Novato, CA 94947

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Skot McDaniel

Ms. Jennifer Darrah
2925 Parkland Dr
Winter Park, FL 32789-6650

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jennifer Darrah

Mr. Terry Prohaska
14059 SE Tiara Dr
Milwaukie, OR 97267-2127

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Terry Prohaska

Mrs. Kathy Harney
38918 Alston Ave
Zephyrhills, FL 33542-7172
(813) 782-3026

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kathy Harney

Miss SYLVANA ARGUELLO
6320 SW 138th Ct
Apt 304
Miami, FL 33183-2074

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss SYLVANA ARGUELLO

Ms. Deborah Tibbetts
2003 Bayview Heights Dr Spc 93
San Diego, CA 92105-5527
(619) 540-2036

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Deborah Tibbetts

Ms. Robin Craft
PO Box 126
Plain City, OH 43064-0126
(614) 537-3784

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Robin Craft

Mr. Timothy Laurent
30296 Milton Rd
Walker, LA 70785-5716

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Timothy Laurent

Mrs. Jillian Cedeno
123 private
Town, PA 17870

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Jillian Cedeno

Mr. Christopher Patrick
2902 Moss Rd NW
Huntsville, AL 35810-3704

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Christopher Patrick

Mr. Dwayne Dassing
1124 Western Blvd
Arlington, TX 76013-3837

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Dwayne Dassing

Ms. Ginny Gonell
2350 NE 135th St
North Miami, FL 33181-3553
(305) 948-6784

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Ginny Gonell

Ms. Danielle Bradley
11203 Wallaby Ct
San Diego, CA 92128-4085

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Danielle Bradley

Miss Jean Speight
1404 Hardin Rd
Lumberton, NC 28358-4241

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Jean Speight

Ms. Robin Preston
9757 Mahan Dr
Tallahassee, FL 32309-9607

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Robin Preston

Mr. Joao Monteiro
389 E 89th St
New York, NY 10128-5067

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Joao Monteiro

Mr. Don Straley
583 Janet Dr
Canfield, OH 44406-1535
(330) 774-3341

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Don Straley

Mrs. Kodi Arner
465 N Conwell St
Casper, WY 82601-2164

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kodi Arner

Mrs. Virginia Wiener
150 Loomis Ct
Princeton, NJ 08540-3439
(609) 683-9657

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Virginia Wiener

Mrs. Penny Kern
18418 NW 49th Ave
Ridgefield, WA 98642-9613

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Penny Kern

Mrs. Patty Bettridge Bettridge
114 W Dallas Ave
Madison Heights, MI 48071-3962

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Patty Bettridge Bettridge

Mr. Joseph Jordan
7104 Tulip St
Philadelphia, PA 19135-1428
(215) 533-6407

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Joseph Jordan

Ms. Kandi Donahue
4691 S Decatur St Apt 316
Englewood, CO 80110-5348
(720) 289-8057

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Kandi Donahue

Mr. Patrick Maloney
1721 W Barry Ave
Chicago, IL 60657-6778

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Patrick Maloney

Mr. Daniel Johnson
1196 Barr Cres
Milton, ON L9T 6X7

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Daniel Johnson

Mr. Steven Kostis
261 W 28th St
Apt 2c
New York, NY 10001-5936
(212) 643-1525

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Steven Kostis

Ms. Diane Smith
1234 Chuckanut
Bellingham, WA 98229-6914

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Diane Smith

Ms. Demetria Hendley
30 Mercer Ave
East Hartford, CT 06118-1516

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Demetria Hendley

Mrs. Susan Lowe
466 Marzolf Rd
Pittsburgh, PA 15209-1162

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Susan Lowe

Mr. Rick Ruse
1430 Trafalgar Rd
Oakville, ON L6H 2L1
(905) 845-9430

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Rick Ruse

Ms. Nomi Road
15023 Sutter Creek Rd
Sutter Creek, CA 95685-9735

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nomi Road

Miss Jenna Detuccio
14200 Plantation Park Blvd
Charlotte, NC 28277-2267

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Jenna Detuccio

Ms. Heather Schraeder
4900 Overland Ave
Unit 213
Culver City, CA 90230-4274

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Heather Schraeder

Mrs. Karolina Niccum
21519 Eich Dr
Crest Hill, IL 60403-1543

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Karolina Niccum

Ms. patricia Raczynski
2708 Windwood Ct
Cape Coral, FL 33991-3042
(239) 440-5076

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. patricia Raczynski

Mrs. Catherine Galligan
30 Parry Rd
Stamford, CT 06907-1019

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Catherine Galligan

Mrs. Lynne Morand
3002 Holly Tree Ln
Monroe, NC 28110-8960
(704) 681-6517

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Lynne Morand

Ms. Michel Lamb
7950 Timbercreek Ln Apt C
North Charleston, SC 29418-2206

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Michel Lamb

Mr. Brian McNeil
2713 Westview Ct Apt 7
Cross Plains, WI 53528-9770

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Brian McNeil

Ms. Aubrey Lees
244 W 4th St
New York, NY 10014-2666
(212) 645-6765

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Aubrey Lees

Miss Chantal Goodey
81 Belfield Road
Epsom, None Kt199tf
(795) 719-3547

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Chantal Goodey

Ms. Gina Norton
805 Windward Dr
Forked River, NJ 08731-3011
(609) 658-4570

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Gina Norton

Ms. Karey Haj
6900 E Princess Dr
Phoenix, AZ 85054-4101

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Karey Haj

Ms. Irene Hesse
2312 W Foothills Dr
Missoula, MT 59803-2631

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Irene Hesse

Mr. Bryan Gilroy
10344 14th Ave S
Seattle, WA 98168-1689
(206) 767-0244

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Bryan Gilroy

Ms. Victoria Kraft
336 Cliff View Dr
Grand Junction, CO 81507-3602

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Victoria Kraft

Ms. Kathy DeFulgentis
20 Bay 32nd St
Brooklyn, NY 11214-4113

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Kathy DeFulgentis

Mr. Michael Brandes
2024 Cameron Ave
Merrick, NY 11566-2101

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Michael Brandes

Mrs. judy Nelson
1660 Olmeda St
Encinitas, CA 92024-4831

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. judy Nelson

Mrs. Shari Luker
16716 Stone Creek Ct
Florissant, MO 63034-1019
(314) 839-1987

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Shari Luker

Ms. Mary Farmer
8311 Cherokee Ln
Leawood, KS 66206-1435
(816) 694-5261

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Mary Farmer

Mr. Michael McMurtrey
1330 Mac Arthur Dr
Carrollton, TX 75007-4464

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Michael McMurtrey

Mr. Allan Kirkham
4062 Bettian Ave
Milton, FL 32583-2872
(850) 983-3803

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Allan Kirkham

Dr. Donald Hallcom
2 Labarre Ave
Trenton, NJ 08618-4908
(609) 372-7232

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Donald Hallcom

Ms. Lisa Agard
1311 S 13th St
Mount Vernon, WA 98274-5103
(206) 406-0027

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lisa Agard

Ms. Patricia Chiri
1800 Englewood Rd
Englewood, FL 34223-1879
(941) 586-5593

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Patricia Chiri

Miss JENNIFER SCHULER
5729 Crabtree Ln
Cicero, NY 13039-9502
(315) 699-4322

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss JENNIFER SCHULER

Ms. Judy Dufresne
225 Coldstream Ave
Merritt Island, FL 32953-4681

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Judy Dufresne

Ms. Karen Roark
3942 Winchester Dr
Ayden, NC 28513-7128
(252) 746-6335

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Karen Roark

Mrs. Rachel Ford
PO Box 14572
Charleston, SC 29422-4572
(843) 229-1150

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Rachel Ford

Ms. Susan Pike
1614 Monarch Ln
Davis, CA 95618-1642

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Susan Pike

Mr. Matthew Daley
123 Tennis Ave
Ambler, PA 19002-4248

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Matthew Daley

Ms. Jess Woods
Dudley rd
Fort Mitchell, KY 41017

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jess Woods

Mrs. vicki hawthorne
24468 Fawn Cir
Porter, TX 77365-6020
(281) 354-1392

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. vicki hawthorne

Mrs. NANCY COLLINS
6666 Foxcroft Ct
Chino, CA 91710-3884
(909) 438-4614

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. NANCY COLLINS

Mrs. Ann Taylor
165 County Road 3696
Springtown, TX 76082-4928
(682) 478-8846

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Ann Taylor

Ms. Nola Krasko
123 Shirley Ln
Lawrenceville, NJ 08648-1422

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nola Krasko

Mr. Albert Knott
401 Bell Ave
Apt 25
Sacramento, CA 95838-2263

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Albert Knott

Ms. Eva Gonzales
PO Box 241363
San Antonio, TX 78224-8363
(210) 281-1819

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Eva Gonzales

Ms. Ashton Lindner
16645 W Woodview Dr
Brookfield, WI 53005-2171

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Ashton Lindner

Ms. Marsha Schaub
141 Big Springs Dr
Naples, FL 34113-8327
(239) 307-8701

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marsha Schaub

Mr. KEVIN WIKER
102 Genise Dr
Phoenixville, PA 19460-4804

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. KEVIN WIKER

Ms. Colleen o'Shaughnessy
Garden ave
San rafael, CA 94903

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Colleen o'Shaughnessy

Ms. Stacey Lasecki
104 Golden Star Ln
Mooresville, NC 28117-7586

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Stacey Lasecki

Ms. Jude Lindquist
1320 Ellsworth Industrial Blvd NW
Ste A600
Atlanta, GA 30318-7266

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jude Lindquist

Mr. David Tuckett
7054 S Horizon Cir
Cottonwood Heights, UT 84121-4356
(801) 943-7902

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. David Tuckett

Mrs. Allison Stillman
347 N Poli St
Ojai, CA 93023-1548

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Allison Stillman

Mrs. Rebecca Egbert
1118 Winterlocken Dr
Sanford, NC 27330-7047
(919) 721-0030

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Rebecca Egbert

Mr. Evan Shamoon
1144 N Hudson Ave
Los Angeles, CA 90038-1406
(415) 272-4418

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Evan Shamoon

Ms. Julia Stewart
711 Leavenworth St
San Francisco, CA 94109-6084

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Julia Stewart

Ms. Thanh Truong
Bangkok
bangkok
thailand, YT 66621
(087) 939-9364

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Thanh Truong

Ms. Sheron Bourassa
3812 Parkside Cir
Palm Springs, FL 33461-3665

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sheron Bourassa

Mr. John McLaughlin Jr
4919 Cronin Ct
Fair Oaks, CA 95628-5415
(916) 966-2927

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. John McLaughlin Jr

Mrs. Kristen Gayoso
12898 Buckland St
Wellington, FL 33414-6223
(561) 236-9257

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kristen Gayoso

Mrs. Emily Valdes
25443 SW 107th Ct
Homestead, FL 33032-6147

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Emily Valdes

Ms. Lisa Pacella
3335 Cactus Lane
Mount Dora, FL 32757

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lisa Pacella

Ms. Lisa Morales
2714 W Braddock St
Tampa, FL 33607-6828
(727) 424-3633

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lisa Morales

Ms. Heather Tingle
0000 No Name
anywhere, IL 60000

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Heather Tingle

Ms. Donna Salmane
423 W 8th Ave
Tarentum, PA 15084-1343
(724) 681-0855

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Donna Salmane

Ms. Mary Keithler
11322 E Ida Ct
Englewood, CO 80111-4135
(303) 777-1111

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Mary Keithler

Mrs. Jill Angersbach
1008 McLeod Parc
Pickerington, OH 43147-8997

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Jill Angersbach

Mrs. stephani borda
5939 Porpoise Ln
Orlando, FL 32822-6926
(407) 207-0707

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. stephani borda

Ms. Lori Grande
6711 Bayway Dr
Baytown, TX 77520-1530

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lori Grande

Mr. Kevin McCarthy
44522 W Rhinestone Rd
Maricopa, AZ 85139-5458

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Kevin McCarthy

Mr. Bill Giese
2129 Westdale Dr SW
Apt 1
Cedar Rapids, IA 52404-6358
(319) 432-3655

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Bill Giese

Ms. Diane Giangulio
4310 Geryville Pike
Green Lane, PA 18054-2203
(215) 234-4160

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Diane Giangulio

Ms. Jaimy Sprissler
969 Emory St
Imperial Beach, CA 91932-2235
(619) 717-3259

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jaimy Sprissler

Ms. Rachel Hart
18880 Douglas Apt 339
Irvine, CA 92612-7419
(323) 800-7891

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Rachel Hart

Mrs. Brittany beatty
231 Foxhaven Pl
Loveland, CO 80537-3412
970

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Brittany beatty

Ms. Pamela Morris
PO Box 9011
Pmb428, .
Calexico, CA 92232-9011
(686) 688-1638

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Pamela Morris

Mrs. Kitt Troncone
8230 Hillrose St
Sunland, CA 91040-2404
(818) 433-6550

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kitt Troncone

Mrs. Becky Long
4045 Chestnut Ln
Placerville, CA 95667-6735
(530) 621-2123

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Becky Long

Miss Alexandra Vakhrina
Laboratory street 29
Saint-Petersburg, Russia 195197

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Alexandra Vakhrina

Mrs. Elizabeth Ashby
8 E 96th St
New York, NY 10128-0706
(212) 427-6472

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Elizabeth Ashby

Mrs. Mickie Boehm
120 E Hazel St
Orlando, FL 32804-3917

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Mickie Boehm

Mrs. Arlene Anderson
1719 Brandywine Ct
Atlanta, GA 30338-4348

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Arlene Anderson

Mrs. Gloria Antalek
440 Ramona Ave Apt 2
Monterey, CA 93940-4063
(831) 917-8697

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Gloria Antalek

Ms. Simran K Khalsa
8933 w 24th sy
Os Angeles, CA 90034
(310) 558-8195

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Simran K Khalsa

Mrs. Gail Yalden
7019 Perrietta Ln
Rockford, IL 61107-2756
(815) 397-1017

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Gail Yalden

Ms. Anna Rosmini
624 Brookwood Ln
North Wales, PA 19454-2420
(215) 699-1599

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Anna Rosmini

Mr. John Hetlage
805 Grimstone Dr
Chesterfield, MO 63017-1462
(636) 667-7586

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. John Hetlage

Ms. RL Maiden
PO Box 900
Walnut Grove, CA 95690-0900

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. RL Maiden

Mr. Richard Han
1795 W Stadium Blvd
Ann Arbor, MI 48103-5290
(734) 662-3377

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Han

Mrs. Paula Long
1200 Marshall Dr
Junction City, KS 66441-4525
(785) 238-1289

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Paula Long

Ms. kathleen crum
11682 Martha Ann Dr
Los Alamitos, CA 90720-4042

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. kathleen crum

Miss Tiffany Razo
7209 Summit Rd
Darien, IL 60561-3526

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Tiffany Razo

Mr. Bob Steininger
100 Westridge Pl S
Phoenixville, PA 19460-3376

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Bob Steininger

Ms. Michaela Flynn
811 S Ainsworth Ave
Tacoma, WA 98405-3348

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Michaela Flynn

Dr. Colleen Farmer
4106 Oglethorpe St
Hyattsville, MD 20782-3025

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Colleen Farmer

Mr. Barry Iorio
12621 Ninebark St
Moreno Valley, CA 92553-4779

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Barry Iorio

Ms. Tracy Martin
12 Canyon Rim
Newport Coast, CA 92657-1713
(949) 395-7460

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Tracy Martin

Ms. Cindy Kirkendall
15305 44th Ave W
Lynnwood, WA 98087-6121
(425) 412-4040

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Cindy Kirkendall

Mr. Jeff Frantz
99 Cox Rd
Skipperville, AL 36374-7611

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jeff Frantz

Ms. Sandy R
PO Box 35904
Las Vegas, NV 89133-5904

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sandy R

Ms. Victoria Mason
2315 Robinson Rd
Grants Pass, OR 97527-9284
(541) 474-4972

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Victoria Mason

Ms. Elizabeth Piatek
2321 W Cortez St
Chicago, IL 60622-3520
(773) 880-1460

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Elizabeth Piatek

Mrs. Nancy Frederick
9 Stoney Brook Blvd
Newtown Square, PA 19073-3956

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Nancy Frederick

Mrs. Christina White
5725 Pope St
Baltimore, MD 21225-3717

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Christina White

Ms. Gail Battinelli
731 Humbert Ave
Utica, NY 13501-3226
(315) 404-2344

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Gail Battinelli

Mrs. Kimberley Fisher
208 Veatch Gap Rd
Fort Valley, VA 22652-1842
(540) 933-6858

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kimberley Fisher

Ms. zenaida denton
2040 NE 182nd St
North Miami Beach, FL 33162-1628
(305) 945-1586

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. zenaida denton

Ms. Barbara Martin
7441 NW 13th Ct
Plantation, FL 33313-5927
(954) 434-0643

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Barbara Martin

Miss Sylvia Boronski
320 N 11th St
Reading, PA 19604-2904

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Sylvia Boronski

Mr. Edgar Carpenter
597 Chelsea Dr
Henderson, NV 89014-3937
(806) 206-8171

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Edgar Carpenter

Mr. John Fedorczyk
3669 Burton St
Sherrills Ford, NC 28673-9800
(828) 478-1006

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. John Fedorczyk

Mrs. bente jørgensen
hvalsøvej 330
Kirke Eskilstrup, None 4360
(454) 640-7028

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. bente jørgensen

Mrs. Christine Ridgway
Patricks Pt
Trinidad, CA 95570
(707) 688-7401

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Christine Ridgway

Ms. Deborah Dus
4430 N Arcadia Ln
Phoenix, AZ 85018-3236

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Deborah Dus

Ms. ISABELLE CLEDASSOU rue du pastel
pin balma, None 31130

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. ISABELLE CLEDASSOU

Ms. Leslie Pinilla
227 Vanderbilt Ave
Staten Island, NY 10304-2524
(718) 524-8233

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Leslie Pinilla

Ms. Billie Malamas
728 Thomas St
Plainwell, MI 49080-1341

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Billie Malamas

Mrs. America Quintana
923 W Baseline Rd
Claremont, CA 91711

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. America Quintana

Mr. Dillard Henderson
209 Herron St
Morganton, NC 28655-3800

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Dillard Henderson

Ms. Andrea Gamble
2236 Muleshoe Rd
Battle Mtn, NV 89820-1737
(775) 635-9163

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Andrea Gamble

Mr. Keith Wilkins
21 Lancelot Ln
Mount Laurel, NJ 08054-1912
(856) 778-8661

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Keith Wilkins

Ms. Jackie Pelosi
PO Box 674
Big Sur, CA 93920-0674
(831) 233-9065

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jackie Pelosi

Mrs. Linda Greene
210 W Patwood Dr
La Habra, CA 90631-7233

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Linda Greene

Mr. Alan MacLamroc
1730 Tyler Green Trl SE
Smyrna, GA 30080-5683
(770) 333-9537

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Alan MacLamroc

Miss Diane Remicci
14 Marc Ter
Monroe, NY 10950-4311

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Diane Remicci

Ms. Aristo Vinayak
13060 Elm Tree Dr
Apt 402
Herndon, VA 20171-4871
(703) 945-4605

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Aristo Vinayak

Miss Pavleta Ellison
849 Foxcroft Dr
Fayetteville, NC 28311-9391
(304) 619-6104

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Pavleta Ellison

Mrs. Dorothy Culp
PO Box 174
Novelty, OH 44072-0174
(440) 384-1618

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Dorothy Culp

Mrs. Angela Torreano
708 42nd ave
Menominee, MI 49858

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Angela Torreano

Ms. Suzanne Saunders
8455 13th St N
Apt D
St Petersburg, FL 33702-7950
(727) 576-1756

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Suzanne Saunders

Dr. Laura Calkins
5001 Chicago Ave Apt 617
Lubbock, TX 79414-1735

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Laura Calkins

Ms. Mary Levy
822 Windermere Ave
Drexel Hill, PA 19026-1531
(215) 964-4225

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Mary Levy

Mrs. E Margaret Krueger
30152 Trailwood Dr
Warren, MI 48092-6304
(586) 268-3405

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. E Margaret Krueger

Ms. Kathleen McNulty
P O BOX 4660
Austintown
Endangered needs all our help, OH
44515-0660

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Kathleen McNulty

Mrs. Mila Kachenovska
8302 Alma St
Philadelphia, PA 19152-2316

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Mila Kachenovska

Mr. Sam Butler
8134 Westlawn Ave
Los Angeles, CA 90045-2753

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Sam Butler

Ms. Cassandra Cline
121 Versailles Cir Apt C
Towson, MD 21204-6921
(443) 824-3422

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Cassandra Cline

Mrs. Tracey Dunlap
11424 36th Dr NE Unit 68
Marysville, WA 98271-8439
(425) 530-4646

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Tracey Dunlap

Mr. Roger Carillo
2440 E Leonora St
Mesa, AZ 85213-2354
(480) 888-5373

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Roger Carillo

Ms. Rose Wendling
77 Crowell Ave
Fort Thomas, KY 41075-2562
(859) 441-1127

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Rose Wendling

Miss A Fontaine
3349 S 100th St
Milwaukee, WI 53227-4282

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss A Fontaine

Ms. Judy Yamamura
4329 209th Ave NE
Sammamish, WA 98074-9361

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Judy Yamamura

Ms. Marcia Bourland
5555 S Everett Ave
Chicago, IL 60637-1968
(773) 752-0790

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marcia Bourland

Dr. Rebecca Brunelli
2581 California Park Dr
Apt 248
Chico, CA 95928-4009

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Rebecca Brunelli

Mr. Vedran anko
Drieva 71b
Zagreb, None 10000

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Vedran anko

Mrs. Joan McKinney
9201 Shore Rd Apt C110
Brooklyn, NY 11209-6554

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Joan McKinney

Mr. roger neupert
3214 152nd St SW
Lynnwood, WA 98087-2404
(425) 266-3434

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. roger neupert

Mrs. Cher Kearney
507 Lynn Ave
East Northport, NY 11731-3421
(631) 513-1233

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Cher Kearney

Mr. Raymond Gregg
1014 Calderwood Dr
Houston, TX 77073-1209

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Raymond Gregg

Mrs. Pat Roberts
6374 Hanna Ct NW
Concord, NC 28027-2504

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Pat Roberts

Dr. Maria Teresa Locicero
Via Padre Pio 23/C
Pedara, None 95030
(909) 578-0878

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Maria Teresa Locicero

Mrs. Julie Capps
1001 Main St
Waverly, MO 64096-8130
(660) 641-6584

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Julie Capps

Mr. Asher Cohen
5615 Forbes Ave
Pittsburgh, PA 15217-1523

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Asher Cohen

Ms. Diane Robles
36 Q St NW
1
Washington, DC 20001-1116
(678) 464-6964

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Diane Robles

Mr. Philip Ritter
16319 N 164th Ln
Surprise, AZ 85388-1127
(623) 933-4425

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Philip Ritter

Ms. Abigail Ann Fanestil
363 W Prairie St
Sequim, WA 98382-3788

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Abigail Ann Fanestil

Mr. Roberto Paniagua
6916 Almansa St
Coral Gables, FL 33146-3810

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Roberto Paniagua

Ms. kathleen johnson
14335 SW Sexton Mountain Dr
Beaverton, OR 97008-5657

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. kathleen johnson

Mr. Paul St Louis
141 Old Piney Trl
Paige, TX 78659-4881
(512) 416-2531

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Paul St Louis

Ms. Jessica Rae
17 Lucy St Apt C
Woodbridge, CT 06525-2231
(203) 499-9614

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jessica Rae

Ms. Karen Precht
290 Casa Real Pl
Nipomo, CA 93444-9505

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Karen Precht

Mr. Fred Richter
5535 Columbia Pike Apt 217
Arlington, VA 22204-3167

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Fred Richter

Mrs. Anna Zumwalt
322 N Quince St
Salt Lake City, UT 84103-1640

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Anna Zumwalt

Mrs. Erin Znidar
7154 Erie Dr
Mentor, OH 44060-5148
(440) 975-8368

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Erin Znidar

Mrs. Christina Wallace
PO Box 853
Penngrove, CA 94951-0853

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Christina Wallace

Mr. Daniel Driver
134b Watkins Ave
Woodbury, NJ 08096-5010
(856) 534-6281

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Daniel Driver

Mrs. Kim Shiels
34 Wanoma Cir
Rehoboth Beach, DE 19971-7705

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kim Shiels

Ms. Natalie Santiago
69 W 225th St
Bronx, NY 10463-7004
(718) 200-3060

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Natalie Santiago

Mrs. Ethel Lidgren
Bergshöjden 20
Sundbyberg, AK 17445
(073) 141-5144

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Ethel Lidgren

Ms. Waller Laurie
346 Lebanon Ave
Colchester, CT 06415-2131
(860) 531-9368

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Waller Laurie

Ms. Rebecca Schneider
7112 Lake Magnolia Dr
New Port Richey, FL 34653-6906
(727) 237-7409

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Rebecca Schneider

Ms. Natalie Quiet
3140 Webster St
Wheat Ridge, CO 80033-8074

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Natalie Quiet

Mr. Mikal Nuhn
14125 Skyline Rd NE
Albuquerque, NM 87123-2333

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Mikal Nuhn

Mr. Al Lattin
5914 Catalpa Ave
Ridgewood, NY 11385-4461

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Al Lattin

Ms. Cassie Sheldon
12012 Moorpark St Apt 6
Studio City, CA 91604-1729

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Cassie Sheldon

Mrs. Pamela McGillivray
104 Rustic Dr
Newark, DE 19713-4215

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Pamela McGillivray

Ms. June Little
2511 N Richmond Rd
Wharton, TX 77488-2429
(979) 453-1554

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. June Little

Ms. Crystelyn Guerri
204 E Williams St
Waterloo, NY 13165-1509
(315) 651-0780

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Crystelyn Guerri

Ms. Lisa Fox
365 Jones Rd
Cabot, PA 16023-9734

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lisa Fox

Mrs. Iris Owens
1122 Gaston Manor Dr
Durham, NC 27703-8107
(207) 504-0472

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Iris Owens

Ms. Marilyn Whipple
29 Summit Rd
Patterson, NY 12563-1423
(845) 259-3437

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marilyn Whipple

Mr. Robert Petersen
85 Enterprise
Aliso Viejo, CA 92656-2614

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Robert Petersen

Mrs. T D
634 Huntingdon St
Elon, NC 27244-9809

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. T D

Mrs. Stephanie Maddrey
6540 Greenwood Ave N
Seattle, WA 98103-5224
(206) 288-3135

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Stephanie Maddrey

Mr. Paul Koburi
814 Maple Forest Ave
Minneola, FL 34715-7739

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Paul Koburi

Miss Angela Martel
397 Main St
Sandown, NH 03873-2144

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Angela Martel

Ms. Brett Casper
435 E 79th St
New York, NY 10075-1034

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Brett Casper

Mr. Joseph Zingone
2209 S Bancroft St
Philadelphia, PA 19145-3817
(215) 416-0082

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Joseph Zingone

Mrs. CRYSTAL ALANCASTRO
315 Hanlon Way
Bay Point, CA 94565-3403

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. CRYSTAL ALANCASTRO

Mr. Steve Sheehy
4727 Alpine Dr
Klamath Falls, OR 97603-8303
(541) 331-1448

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Steve Sheehy

Mr. Jeff Rieman
1028 N College St Apt 509
Lincoln, IL 62656-1296
(217) 735-3743

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jeff Rieman

Mr. Michael Roteik
385 NW 116th Ave Apt 302
Portland, OR 97229-5997
(503) 430-1759

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Michael Roteik

Ms. Michelle Lee
2449 E 5th St
Long Beach, CA 90814-3596
(562) 856-8086

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Michelle Lee

Mr. Nikola Vlahovich
1025 W Hillgrove Ave Apt 2
La Grange, IL 60525-5896

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Nikola Vlahovich

Ms. Abigail Murrs
Austin
Austin, TX 78741

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Abigail Murrs

Mrs. Jeanette Gold
114 Essex Ct
Bushkill, PA 18324-7999
(570) 431-4128

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Jeanette Gold

Mr. Jeremy Katz
1621 Centinela Ave
Apt C
Santa Monica, CA 90404-4262
(310) 980-0122

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jeremy Katz

Ms. Pj sherrow
5674 Shannon Heights Blvd
Dublin, OH 43016-4188

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Pj sherrow

Ms. Valjon Furr
2024 Seagirt Blvd
Apt 1f
Far Rockaway, NY 11691-5901

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Valjon Furr

Mr. allan nasta
PO Box 104
Lyndhurst, NJ 07071-0104

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. allan nasta

Ms. Margaret Lambros
84 Roger Valley Ct
Baltimore, MD 21234-1442

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Margaret Lambros

Mr. Joseph Kiesznoski
6642 Meadow Ln
South Wales, NY 14139-9714
(716) 652-5651

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Joseph Kiesznoski

Mr. Tim Brady
51 Mayfair
Aliso Viejo, CA 92656-2849
(714) 724-1621

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Tim Brady

Mrs. Dawn Smith
27676 W Rowe Ave
Spring Grove, IL 60081-9003
(847) 815-8917

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Dawn Smith

Mr. Bob Bendat
5400 Christopher Dr
Yorba Linda, CA 92887-5834
(714) 350-6306

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Bob Bendat

Mrs. Ashlee Godin
29 Kaler Rd
South Portland, ME 04106-6621
(207) 632-9250

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Ashlee Godin

Ms. Sandra Blinn
1671 Brandywine Rd
Apt 2219
West Palm Beach, FL 33409-2083

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sandra Blinn

Mrs. Dawn Morris
1674 Benton Way
Upland, CA 91784-1827

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Dawn Morris

Mr. Irwin Hoenig
PO Box 5292
Laurel, MD 20726-5292

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Irwin Hoenig

Mr. paul heloskie
2075 Alan Dr
Seaford, NY 11783-2702

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. paul heloskie

Ms. Marianne Turner
395 Park Ave
Rye, NY 10580-1243

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marianne Turner

Mrs. Cathy Leonard
710 SW Sail Ter
Port St Lucie, FL 34953-2627

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Cathy Leonard

Ms. Marjorie Stoeker
12140 Autumn Lakes Dr
Maryland Heights, MO 63043-4909
(314) 644-9338

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marjorie Stoeker

Ms. Jonellen Thompson
2727 Palisade Ave
Apt 10a
Bronx, NY 10463-1037
(212) 690-0073

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jonellen Thompson

Ms. Michele Spoons-Wood
41496 Rue Maison
Ponchatoula, LA 70454-7084

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Michele Spoons-Wood

Ms. Margot Becker
689 Columbus Ave Apt 2h
New York, NY 10025-7003

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Margot Becker

Ms. Victoria Audley
126 Triangle St
Apt A19
Danbury, CT 06810-2903

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Victoria Audley

Ms. Michelle Barsom
544 College St
Cuthbert, GA 39840-5551
(229) 366-1725

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Michelle Barsom

Ms. Vanessa Prieto
Cto de cantabria
Chihuahua, None 31160

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Vanessa Prieto

Ms. Shannon Taylor
1981 Lafromboise St
Enumclaw, WA 98022-2726

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Shannon Taylor

Dr. Esther Weaver
47 Hawleys Corners Rd
Highland, NY 12528-2716

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Esther Weaver

Mrs. Matilde Navarro
11382 Wasco Rd
Garden Grove, CA 92841-1528
(714) 534-3693

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Matilde Navarro

Mr. Lawrence Cromwell
9895 SE Osprey Pointe Dr
Hobe Sound, FL 33455-3021
(703) 490-3906

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Lawrence Cromwell

Mr. Joseph Lemischak
75 Virginia Rd
White Plains, NY 10603-1430

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Joseph Lemischak

Mrs. Pat Peters
4011 SW 43rd Ave
Portland, OR 97221-3754

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Pat Peters

Mr. Michael Rivney
10325 W Regena Ave
Las Vegas, NV 89149-1242
(702) 321-7459

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Michael Rivney

Ms. Diana Fox
8419 E Vista Dr
Scottsdale, AZ 85250-7440
(480) 612-3919

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Diana Fox

Dr. Sheila Martin
112 Ox Yoke Ct
Custer, SD 57730-8401

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Sheila Martin

Mrs. Regina Donohue
9801 52nd St W Apt C
University Place, WA 98467-1259

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Regina Donohue

Dr. Carol Wise
6826 Kingsbury Blvd
Saint Louis, MO 63130-4632
(314) 721-4545

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Carol Wise

Mr. Leonard Rangel
2031 Nordic Ave
Chino Hills, CA 91709-4769
(909) 597-5938

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Leonard Rangel

Mrs. Michelle Leftwich
118 Pin Oak Dr
Cabot, AR 72023-3136

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Michelle Leftwich

Mrs. Tiffany Mooty
2234 N Camino Castile Apt 1011
Tucson, AZ 85715-4305

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Tiffany Mooty

Miss catherine solorio
4739 Calle Solimar
Oceanside, CA 92057-5629

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss catherine solorio

Ms. Keri Zacher
7278 Kamehameha V Hwy
Kaunakakai, HI 96748-6003
(808) 558-8518

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Keri Zacher

Mr. Emanuel Jones
29698 Reed Dr
Flat Rock, MI 48134-6028
(734) 782-5552

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Emanuel Jones

Mr. Jr Ball
307 Beverley Pl
Edgewater, MD 21037-4825

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jr Ball

Ms. Malia Hanula
16549 W 15th Ave
Golden, CO 80401-2867

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Malia Hanula

Ms. Patricia Gashlin
107 Webb Ave
Ocean Grove, NJ 07756-1233
(732) 988-2775

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Patricia Gashlin

Ms. Annoula Myers
4328 Murillo St
Las Vegas, NV 89121-5323
(702) 650-3511

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Annoula Myers

Dr. Gretchen Besser
3679 Stagecoach Rd
Morrisville, VT 05661-8885
(802) 888-3967

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Gretchen Besser

Mr. Ben Ramin
702 Jamaica Dr
Troy, MI 48083-1038
(248) 877-1877

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Ben Ramin

Ms. Brittany Chinigo
252 Old Canterbury Tpke Lot 106
Norwich, CT 06360-1389

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Brittany Chinigo

Ms. Anastasia Drozd
17/1, Ziny Portnovoy street
St. Petersburg, None 198207

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Anastasia Drozd

Mr. Alexander Koning
204 Reading Way
Monument, CO 80132-8292

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Alexander Koning

Ms. Gheisha Rosario
9 Bruin Ct
Greensboro, NC 27405-9706

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Gheisha Rosario

Ms. Julie Whitacre
659 E Laurel Rd
Bellingham, WA 98226-9728

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Julie Whitacre

Ms. Janice Bartlett
4827 Tula Ct
San Diego, CA 92122-2844

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Janice Bartlett

Ms. Lori Seekins
20 North St
Augusta, ME 04330-5009

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lori Seekins

Mr. Joe Gray
12 Brookdale Ave
Greenville, SC 29607-2934

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Joe Gray

Miss Elsa Morales
sanchez azcona
Mexico City, None 03100

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Elsa Morales

Ms. Shelley Williams
3741 Clubway Ln
Dallas, TX 75244-5412

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Shelley Williams

Mrs. Jo Long
3701 Fischer Store Rd
Wimberley, TX 78676-4681
(512) 667-4247

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Jo Long

Mrs. Nancy Belt
12380 Whistler St
Grand Terrace, CA 92313-5550
(909) 730-0615

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Nancy Belt

Ms. Wendy Barnett
706 Big Sur Trl
Taylor, TX 76574-7064
(512) 300-9740

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Wendy Barnett

Miss Alisha Kryszylowicz
4567 se bulgar st
portland, OR 97223

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Alisha Kryszylowicz

Mrs. Phyllis Krystal
1901 Dayton Rd Spc 85
Chico, CA 95928-6954
(530) 487-7220

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Phyllis Krystal

Mrs. Evelyne TEske
327 Hill Rd
Walla Walla, WA 99362-7746

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Evelyne TEske

Mrs. Stephanie Rodriguez
4501 Frankfort Ave
El Paso, TX 79903-1204

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Stephanie Rodriguez

Ms. Danielle Boccia
1 E 35th St
Apt 4c
New York, NY 10016-3829
(917) 696-8597

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Danielle Boccia

Dr. pamela power
6205 John Moswer Way
prospect, KY 40059-8558

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. pamela power

Mr. Philip Hopgood
PO Box 367163
San Juan, PR 00936-7163
787897011

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Philip Hopgood

Mrs. Kay Scott
21129 Grace Ave
Carson, CA 90745-1329

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kay Scott

Miss Tatyana Galushko
5515 156th St SW
Edmonds, WA 98026-4705

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Tatyana Galushko

Ms. Jeanine Weber
2650 Ridgescroft Dr SE
Grand Rapids, MI 49546-8047

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jeanine Weber

Mr. Larry Johnson
901 Vinson Rd
Lafayette, TN 37083
(615) 688-0711

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Larry Johnson

Ms. Claudia Fellrath
12 rue des Vosges
Oberhausbergen, France 67205

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Claudia Fellrath

Dr. Genie Harden
85240 Chezem Rd
Eugene, OR 97405-9202

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Genie Harden

Mrs. Julie Miller
3176 Skyline Dr
Hubertus, WI 53033-9650
(262) 628-1131

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Julie Miller

Ms. Tracy Weiss
4968 Smoketalk Ln
Westerville, OH 43081-4433
(513) 545-5573

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Tracy Weiss

Ms. Maria Kakalioura
8, Patmou str
Athens, None 183 45
0030 6981847585

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Maria Kakalioura

Mrs. Heather Olson
5269 S Pagosa Way
Centennial, CO 80015-2454

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Heather Olson

Mr. Christopher Calloway
1703 Chelmsford Cir
Newark, DE 19713-2908

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Christopher Calloway

Mrs. Patricia Myers
6305 Lakeland Dr
Raleigh, NC 27612-6520
(919) 846-8936

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Patricia Myers

Mrs. FREDA BARRETT
391 Balsam Dr
Dover, DE 19901-1941

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. FREDA BARRETT

Miss Ashley Brannon
2020 E Inverness Ave Apt 2055
Mesa, AZ 85204-6930

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Ashley Brannon

Ms. Maria García
1165 Shakespeare Ave Apt 4f
Bronx, NY 10452-3903
(347) 301-8048

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Maria García

Ms. Terri Davis
7779 Veragua Dr
Playa Del Rey, CA 90293-7942
(415) 260-0794

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Terri Davis

Mrs. Kim Lockwood
3765 Galloway St
Bozeman, MT 59718-8698
(406) 581-8377

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kim Lockwood

Mrs. Joann Erickson
9450 Newton Place Rd
Commerce Twp, MI 48390-1341

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Joann Erickson

Ms. Beth McHenry
Mary St
Parksley, VA 23421

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Beth McHenry

Ms. Carol DiCaprio
1592 Honeysuckle Ln
Charlottesville, VA 22902-7290
(434) 971-1578

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Carol DiCaprio

Ms. Elise Behnke
PO Box 1206
Darby, MT 59829-1206

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Elise Behnke

Mrs. Debra Quinlan
8 Marden Way
Mont Vernon, NH 03057-1426
(603) 672-1413

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Debra Quinlan

Mr. bruce oshaben
734 Patricia Ave
Ann Arbor, MI 48103-2630

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. bruce oshaben

Miss Jenny Swensen
528 E Washington Blvd
Lombard, IL 60148-2835

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Jenny Swensen

Ms. Rosalilia Dorantes
1570 e market st
Long beach, CA 90805
(562) 704-4884

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Rosalilia Dorantes

Mrs. Frieda Carlson
110 S Milwaukee St
Fredonia, WI 53021-9346

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Frieda Carlson

Mr. Thomas Impellizzeri
PO Box 92
Imlay City, MI 48444-0092

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Thomas Impellizzeri

Mr. Ronny Novick
248 S Avenue 51
Los Angeles, CA 90042-4502

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Ronny Novick

Mr. Richard Shiarella
168 Washington Valley Rd
Morristown, NJ 07960-3377
(908) 233-2993

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Shiarella

Mr. Ricky Thomson
PO Box 596
Puyallup, WA 98371-0061

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Ricky Thomson

Ms. Carla Lai
139 E Wayfield Dr
Draper, UT 84020-7972

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Carla Lai

Dr. Marlene Meisels
717 W Junior Ter
Chicago, IL 60613-1512

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Marlene Meisels

Mrs. Jodi Owens
PO Box 34
New Caney, TX 77357-0034

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Jodi Owens

Ms. Linda Mulder
21641 Kilrush Dr
Northville, MI 48167-2838
(248) 348-6889

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Linda Mulder

Mrs. Kelly Shaffer
323 S Lackawanna St
Wayland, NY 14572-1441
(585) 728-9117

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kelly Shaffer

Mr. Brandon Parr
24 S Baltimore Ave Apt 5
Mount Holly Springs, PA 17065-1300

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Brandon Parr

Miss Elisa Mendez
60 Franklin St Apt 1
Bloomfield, NJ 07003-5712

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Elisa Mendez

Ms. Karen Catalano
1264 Via Yezzi
Binghamton, NY 13903-6037

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Karen Catalano

Mr. Matt Ristau
5210 Western Dr
Saint James City, FL 33956-2425

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Matt Ristau

Ms. maria padin
4926 SW 135th Pl
Miami, FL 33175-3848

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. maria padin

Mr. Chris Hansen
3970 Caminito Dehesa
San Diego, CA 92107-1518
(619) 994-2715

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Chris Hansen

Ms. Kate Dushel
12 Chantilear Ct
Stewartstown, PA 17363-4142
(443) 253-9566

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Kate Dushel

Mr. Steven Standard
920 S Soto St
Los Angeles, CA 90023-1323

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Steven Standard

Ms. Lauren Porosoff
22 Olmsted Rd
Scarsdale, NY 10583-2324

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lauren Porosoff

Mrs. Shirley Ruiz
603 McIntosh Dr
Saint Marys, GA 31558-2938

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Shirley Ruiz

Mrs. Michele Galbert
1699 Athena Dr
Kent, OH 44240-4617
(330) 677-4566

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Michele Galbert

Mr. Diamond Patni
8313 Southwest Fwy
Houston, TX 77074-1611

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Diamond Patni

Mr. James Hedgecock
11800 Gold Strike Rd
Pine Grove, CA 95665-9738

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. James Hedgecock

Ms. Lisa Wamsley
924 Washington St
Traverse City, MI 49686-2733
(231) 922-7133

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lisa Wamsley

Ms. JoAnne Verboom
2545 Highridge Ln SE
Grand Rapids, MI 49546-7558

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. JoAnne Verboom

Ms. Jenny Hill
127 Spring Valley Rd
Westerville, OH 43081-2534

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jenny Hill

Ms. Kristen Schweitzer
5905 Stony Brook Dr
Manhattan, KS 66503-9180
(785) 249-4662

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Kristen Schweitzer

Ms. Daryl Feinfeld
32 Waterside Close
Eastchester, NY 10709-5654

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Daryl Feinfeld

Ms. Rosemary Hernandez
5470 W Military Dr Apt 2605
San Antonio, TX 78242-1261

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Rosemary Hernandez

Mr. Anthony Witlin
6079 Bayou Grande Blvd NE
Saint Petersburg, FL 33703-1801

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Anthony Witlin

Ms. Carrie Whitley
545 E Barrett St
Henderson, NV 89011-4331
(702) 372-0957

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Carrie Whitley

Mrs. Leslie Hall
3882 40th Ave W
Bradenton, FL 34205-2356

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Leslie Hall

Ms. Lorraine Lowry
125 West St
Vacaville, CA 95688-3853

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lorraine Lowry

Ms. Marty Abut
Renfro Dr.
Kelseyville, CA 95451-7837
(707) 548-8421

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marty Abut

Ms. tina childrey
3620 Thistle Valley Ln
Bartlett, TN 38135-9476
(901) 428-3604

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. tina childrey

Ms. Rita Lane
324 N Monroe St
Butler, PA 16001-4532

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Rita Lane

Mrs. Diane Armagost
234 E Inglewood St
Mesa, AZ 85201-2330
(480) 788-7765

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Diane Armagost

Mr. Jeremy Navarre
42066 Lincoln St
Belleville, MI 48111-3435

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jeremy Navarre

Mrs. Helen Sullivant
3961 Alma Ct
Pleasanton, CA 94588-4402

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Helen Sullivant

Mrs. Alicia Nichols
1906 Page Pl
Mchenry, IL 60050-8007

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Alicia Nichols

Mrs. Kersty Evans
13 Garden Villas
Nuncio Road
Kilkenny, None N/A

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kersty Evans

Ms. Becky Bernardo
26529 Jefferson Ave
Saint Clair Shores, MI 48081-2478

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Becky Bernardo

Ms. Marianne Dick
1709 Fallhaven Dr
Columbus, OH 43235-5912
(614) 766-7182

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marianne Dick

Ms. Elaine Fletcher
2142 N Treat Ave
Tucson, AZ 85716-3029
(520) 405-9107

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Elaine Fletcher

Mrs. Tami Klossing
3937 Elkcam Blvd SE
St Petersburg, FL 33705-4230

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Tami Klossing

Ms. Mercy Hernandez
623 NW 90th Ter
Plantation, FL 33324-1177

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Mercy Hernandez

Ms. Fran Orzech
5 Fairfield Rd
North Caldwell, NJ 07006-4732
(973) 812-9190

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Fran Orzech

Ms. MICHELE PARMELEE
3400 W Park Blvd Apt 2121
Plano, TX 75075-3412

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. MICHELE PARMELEE

Ms. Martha Ross
946 Superior St
Racine, WI 53404-3116
(262) 633-2617

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Martha Ross

Mr. Brian Hess
304 Catherine Ave
Brownsville, PA 15417-1616

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Brian Hess

Mr. Tim sell
2335 E Cherrywood Dr
Lafayette, CO 80026-2732
(303) 868-8940

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Tim sell

Ms. Annita Oxford
20778 FM 3 S
Normangee, TX 77871-3734
(979) 436-7814

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Annita Oxford

Mrs. Dana Galanaugh
1448 Conway Dr
Swarthmore, PA 19081-2713

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Dana Galanaugh

Ms. VIRGINIA PEIFFER
920 Langley Rd
Glen Burnie, MD 21060-6535
(410) 940-8075

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. VIRGINIA PEIFFER

Mrs. Susan Tortorice
1032 Chelsea Dr
Mesquite, TX 75149-6993
(214) 953-6859

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Susan Tortorice

Ms. Nina Fleck
30 Seaman Ave
New York, NY 10034-6321

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nina Fleck

Ms. Laura Giannotti
7212 Rio Del Luna
Santa Fe, NM 87507-7326
(843) 318-1188

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Laura Giannotti

Ms. Alexandra Fernandez
4711 S Himes Ave Apt 303
Tampa, FL 33611-2620

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Alexandra Fernandez

Mr. Ronn Hochstedler
9406 Bluejacket St
Overland Park, KS 66214-1815

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Ronn Hochstedler

Ms. mary dinkins
box711
dunnellon, FL 34430

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. mary dinkins

Mr. Navindra Bassit
1157 Wheeler Ave
Bronx, NY 10472-3355

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Navindra Bassit

Dr. Drs. norma and peter jackson
2308 Haskell Ave
Columbia, SC 29204-7806
(803) 799-5588

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Drs. norma and peter jackson

Mr. Nathaniel Serrano
24980 Avenida Laredo
Barstow, CA 92311-3301
(760) 577-9856

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Nathaniel Serrano

Miss Rebecca Moras
1267 Stoney Battery Rd
Troutville, VA 24175-7521
(540) 400-1492

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Rebecca Moras

Mrs. Monica DelSignore
852 Canterbury Cres
Bloomfield Hills, MI 48304-2914

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Monica DelSignore

Mrs. Stephanie Davis
616 Jill Rd
Big Spring, TX 79720-1032
(432) 394-4313

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Stephanie Davis

Mr. Eric Waddell
305 Pleasant Ct
Gray, TN 37615-2775

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Eric Waddell

Mr. Gabriel Bobek
Sullivan Street
NYC, NY 10012

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Gabriel Bobek

Ms. Barbara Stanley
N/A
San Diego, CA 92115-2021

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Barbara Stanley

Ms. Julia Lynch
5508 Birchman Ave Apt 24
Fort Worth, TX 76107-5104

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Julia Lynch

Ms. Michaela Dethlefsen
6805 Forest Glade Ct
Middleton, WI 53562-1711

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Michaela Dethlefsen

Mr. Frank Harlow
418 Ruth Ave
Santa Barbara, CA 93101-3328
(805) 966-4604

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Frank Harlow

Mr. Doug Cecere
1338 Saint John Pl
Fort Collins, CO 80525-8805

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Doug Cecere

Ms. Fatemah Nikchehi
815 Peru Ave
San Francisco, CA 94112-2152
(415) 756-4418

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Fatemah Nikchehi

Ms. Diana Hendy
553 Tawny Dr
Prescott, AZ 86301-6757

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Diana Hendy

Mrs. Barbara Cory Lauritsen
1107 Cimarron St
Papillion, NE 68046-3736
(712) 259-2725

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Barbara Cory Lauritsen

Mrs. Melissa Staich
7128 Highway 17
Scotts Valley, CA 95066-2827

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Melissa Staich

Mr. Jack Haber
1 NA
Na, NY 10583

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jack Haber

Ms. Gabrielle de Encio
6035 Riddle Walk
Alexandria, VA 22312-2772

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Gabrielle de Encio

Ms. Edie Bruce
1116 King Dr
El Cerrito, CA 94530-2512

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Edie Bruce

Mr. Stephen Caldwell
9632 Allande Rd NE
Albuquerque, NM 87109-6620

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Stephen Caldwell

Mrs. ALICE LOWE
992 Woodchase Dr
Monroe, GA 30655-8432
(770) 267-3031

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. ALICE LOWE

Ms. Alicia Lancaster
1005 Brown Ave
Evanston, IL 60202-1012
(847) 271-7046

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Alicia Lancaster

Mr. David Lang
2715 Greenwood Rd
Northbrook, IL 60062-7623

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. David Lang

Mr. Tom Brady
4989 Nepal St
Denver, CO 80249-8225

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Tom Brady

Ms. Janet Bennett
5648 Struthers Ct
Winter Haven, FL 33884-2615
(863) 324-2897

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Janet Bennett

Mr. Michael Mueller
8695 Ashland Pl
Freeland, MI 48623-9126
(989) 225-5881

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Michael Mueller

Ms. Roseann Fiore
2631 Russell Dr
Lower Burrell, PA 15068-3036

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Roseann Fiore

Mrs. Emma Bloebaum
482 Burdette Wells Rd
Lockhart, TX 78644-4028
(512) 431-4485

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Emma Bloebaum

Ms. Angela Gibas
1606 W Nopal Dr
Chandler, AZ 85224-2244
(602) 290-4922

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Angela Gibas

Miss Jasmin König
Pontonjärgatan 32
Stockholm, None 11237

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Jasmin König

Ms. Penelope Bramer
157 Chestnut St
Albany, NY 12210-1905

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Penelope Bramer

Ms. Xandra Carter
116 N Mohon St
De Leon, TX 76444-2015
(254) 893-6050

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Xandra Carter

Ms. Carol Bodenmiller
28587 Township Road 26
Warsaw, OH 43844-9802
(740) 824-4497

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Carol Bodenmiller

Mrs. Janet Sparger
758 Summer Ln
Claremore, OK 74017-8518

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Janet Sparger

Dr. Isaac Grazian
1156 Neshaminy Valley Dr
Bensalem, PA 19020-1222
(215) 891-8271

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Isaac Grazian

Ms. Alys Waring
193 E Division St
Weed, CA 96094-2316

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Alys Waring

Ms. Marlisa Spencer
3105 Oak Meadow Dr
Snellville, GA 30078-6503

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marlisa Spencer

Ms. Anthea Lukashonak
5n500 Hazelwood Ct
St Charles, IL 60175-8124

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Anthea Lukashonak

Ms. Eleonora Poggio
Siporexgatan 87
Dalby, None 22652

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Eleonora Poggio

Mrs. susan travis
7301 Rogers Ave
Fort Smith, AR 72903-4100
(479) 314-6332

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. susan travis

Mrs. W. Amato
21 Amherst Ln
Hicksville, NY 11801-3303
(516) 316-9796

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. W. Amato

Mr. Cole Adam
191 Clayton Ln
Denver, CO 80206-5678

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Cole Adam

Ms. Brenda Hinton
12456 Glenbush Dr
Maryland Heights, MO 63043-2946

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Brenda Hinton

Mrs. Elyce Woycke
3239 45th Ave SW
Seattle, WA 98116-3328

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Elyce Woycke

Miss Diana Halsey
Stillman Way
Upland, CA 91786-6248
(626) 374-9554

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Diana Halsey

Ms. Marie Bernache
14150 Wunderlich Dr
Apt 501
Houston, TX 77069-3470
(832) 585-4455

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marie Bernache

Ms. Melissa Underhill
79 Woodhaven Dr
Wayne, NJ 07470-5166
(973) 907-7303

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Melissa Underhill

Mrs. becca costello
5 Mark St
Pawcatuck, CT 06379-2514

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. becca costello

Ms. Annie Cunningham
1601 Multnoma Ave
Akron, OH 44305-1921

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Annie Cunningham

Mr. Brendan Cushing
2 Ridgefield Dr
Shoreham, NY 11786-2031

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Brendan Cushing

Ms. D. Wright
718 Overlook Ave
Cincinnati, OH 45238-4922

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. D. Wright

Mr. Dallas Windham
10928 Audelia Rd Apt 1716
Dallas, TX 75243-8273
(972) 757-2154

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Dallas Windham

Ms. donna white
480 Grooms Rd
Clifton Park, NY 12065-6027

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. donna white

Mr. Steve Putrich
2513 Huntleigh Rd
Springfield, IL 62704-3162

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Steve Putrich

Ms. Lauren Aichinger
50 Murray St
New York, NY 10007-2252

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lauren Aichinger

Mr. Ivan Pfeifer
10001 Coors Bypass NW Apt 2317
Albuquerque, NM 87114-4156

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Ivan Pfeifer

Mr. Alan Brown
5 Meadow Ln
Goffstown, NH 03045-2401

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Alan Brown

Ms. Alexis Gainey
5225 NW 109th Ln
Coral Springs, FL 33076-2755
(954) 675-6618

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Alexis Gainey

Mr. Dan Buchanan
17908 SE 214th St
Renton, WA 98058-9747
(253) 332-5809

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Dan Buchanan

Ms. Lindsey Hutson
213 Spring Dr
Colonial Heights, VA 23834-2432

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lindsey Hutson

Ms. Denise Brown
89 Stivers St
Cresskill, NJ 07626-1817
(201) 673-3076

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Denise Brown

Mrs. Jenna Davila
2700 Clarendon Blvd
Arlington, VA 22201-7005

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Jenna Davila

Ms. Susan Considine
1967 N Edgemont St
Los Angeles, CA 90027-1805
(818) 324-7498

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Susan Considine

Mr. Alex Perez
48 se 1151
San Juan, PR 00921

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Alex Perez

Ms. Danyelle Albaugh
5803 N US Highway 89
39
Flagstaff, AZ 86004-2754

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Danyelle Albaugh

Ms. Susan Hill
2200 Cornell St
Dearborn, MI 48124-2586

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Susan Hill

Mr. Craig Chippinale
7 Sims Ln
Sag Harbor, NY 11963-2541
(631) 725-2167

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Craig Chippinale

Mr. Henry Kamrath
421 S Wright St
Naperville, IL 60540-5446
(630) 961-1376

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Henry Kamrath

Miss Kirsty Haughie
2/373 Hereford Street
Christchurch, None 8011

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Kirsty Haughie

Mrs. Serena Stefanic-Phillip
53-330 Kamehameha Hwy
Hauula, HI 96717-9731

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Serena Stefanic-Phillip

Ms. Amy Erickson
3819 W Rivendell Rd
Taylorsville, UT 84129-3925
(801) 895-5844

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Amy Erickson

Ms. Elizabeth Ehlert
20 1/2 Mount Vernon St
Dover, NH 03820-3031

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Elizabeth Ehlert

Ms. Teria Walters
6722 3rd St NW
Washington, DC 20012-2750

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Teria Walters

Mrs. Angela Morales
43 Nanticoke Dr
Dover, DE 19904-6053

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Angela Morales

Miss Brooke Eastburn
70 Fort Greene Pl
Apt 1
Brooklyn, NY 11217-1262

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Brooke Eastburn

Mrs. Trish Kellermann
7033 Albany Ave
North Beach, MD 20714-9604
(301) 855-7222

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Trish Kellermann

Mrs. Katherine Glascock
4503 Radford Ave
Studio City, CA 91607-4136

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Katherine Glascock

Ms. Sheri Rollison
383 Grandview Ave
Novato, CA 94945-3544

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sheri Rollison

Dr. Stephanie Pugh
6 Eldridge Dr
Robbinsville, NJ 08691-3462

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Stephanie Pugh

Mrs. Sharon Lebon
300 Gilkeson Rd
Apt 3b
Pittsburgh, PA 15228-1052
(412) 531-4345

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Sharon Lebon

Miss Taylor Morgan
5602 Mesa Verde Trl
White Lake, MI 48383-4020
(248) 978-7195

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Miss Taylor Morgan

Ms. Kimberly Teraberry
532 18th Ave E
Seattle, WA 98112-4618

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Kimberly Teraberry

Mr. Beau Hargrove
11700 Luna Rd
Apt 17210
Farmers Branch, TX 75234-6337
(972) 832-4799

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Beau Hargrove

Mrs. Pamela Rogers
40 Oakwood Ave
W Long Branch, NJ 07764-1559

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Pamela Rogers

Mr. Berthold Steffens
336 W Juniper Ave
Gilbert, AZ 85233-3935

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Berthold Steffens

Mr. Memo Mayen
16 de septiembre numero 110
adolfo lopez mateos, None 52940
(553) 793-8664

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Memo Mayen

Ms. Silvia Rennie
375 S End Ave
New York, NY 10280-1014
(917) 725-5208

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Silvia Rennie

Mr. Don Lawing
5437 Lancer Dr
High Point, NC 27263-8004

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Don Lawing

Mr. Archie Austin III
P.O. BOX 190198
Residence: 4480 Perry Rd. Grand Blanc, MI
Burton, MI 48519
(810) 694-0147

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Archie Austin III

Ms. Hilda Gutierrez
1212 Noble St
Houston, TX 77009-8404
(281) 501-2091

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Hilda Gutierrez

Ms. Marilyn Wilkes
250 Ocean Ave
West Haven, CT 06516-7226

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marilyn Wilkes

Mr. Bradley DeLauder
1907 Furnace Rd
Jarrettsville, MD 21084-1915

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Bradley DeLauder

Ms. Jen Prezioso
241 Berkeley Ridge Dr
Columbia, SC 29229-7427

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jen Prezioso

Mr. Robert Janke
2383 Bretton Dr
Cincinnati, OH 45244-3729
(513) 477-8361

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Robert Janke

Mr. Gene Massion
322 Hames Holw
Aptos, CA 95003-9300

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Gene Massion

Mrs. Chris sukow
154 S. Main St
Janesville, WI 53548
(920) 841-8017

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Chris sukow

Mrs. Marleen Gillespie
7 Mimosa
Irvine, CA 92612-2338

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Marleen Gillespie

Ms. Cea Bentley
350 S Shore Pl
Lewisville, TX 75067-5332

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Cea Bentley

Ms. claudia devinney
6786 Westview Dr
Perry, NY 14530-9763
(585) 237-3035

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. claudia devinney

Ms. tamara cabe
607 Freestone Dr
Euless, TX 76039-3625
(817) 283-5802

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. tamara cabe

Mrs. Deb Haynes
2513 N Florida Ave
Joplin, MO 64801-1284
(417) 624-1966

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Deb Haynes

Ms. PEGGY FORAKER
1631 NE Broadway St # 623
Portland, OR 97232-1425
(503) 281-6527

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. PEGGY FORAKER

Ms. Tara Lawrence
1700 Glen Rd
West Palm Beach, FL 33406-3266

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Tara Lawrence

Ms. Karen Smith
1632 N Prospect St
Colorado Springs, CO 80907-7731
(201) 306-1994

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Karen Smith

Mr. Jim Magill
19209 N Route V
Sturgeon, MO 65284-9469
(573) 687-1000

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jim Magill

Ms. Mary Judge
708 Franklin Ave
Santa Fe, NM 87505-1022

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Mary Judge

Ms. Adele True
7932 Beverly Ln
Everett, WA 98203-6405
(425) 876-0926

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Adele True

Mr. Phil morton
29 Washington Pl
New York, NY 10003-6630

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Phil morton

Ms. Lucille Leming
4828 Stagg Rd
Chattanooga, TN 37415-2332
(423) 265-2387

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lucille Leming

Mr. Alex Medford
3567 E 141st Pl
Thornton, CO 80602-8897

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Alex Medford

Ms. Deborah Long
12290 SW 16th Ave
Ocala, FL 34473
(352) 307-4846

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Deborah Long

Mr. Sam Simeone
2301 Oriole St
New Orleans, LA 70122-4335

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Sam Simeone

Dr. Steven Berman
2424 Spaulding Ave Apt 8
Berkeley, CA 94703-1665
(510) 644-2121

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Dr. Steven Berman

Mrs. Lizzy Vazquez
2119 Tierra Del Verde St
Las Vegas, NV 89156-4805

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Lizzy Vazquez

Ms. Sharon Massey
12951 Quail Park Dr
Cypress, TX 77429-3598
(281) 770-5224

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sharon Massey

Mrs. Rebecca Martin
2004 Pear Valley Dr
Elizabethtown, KY 42701-4410
(502) 612-9281

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Rebecca Martin

Ms. Cela Sosa
PO Box 563
Lutz, FL 33548-0563
(813) 731-3721

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Cela Sosa

Mrs. Patricia Nelson
227 Carentan Rd
Hopatcong, NJ 07843-1855

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Patricia Nelson

Ms. Denise Allawas
126 Dysart Pl
Apt G
Fayetteville, NC 28314-4308
(803) 207-1245

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Denise Allawas

Mr. Matthew Damon
3413 E 105th Ter
Kansas City, MO 64137-1607
(816) 560-6959

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Matthew Damon

Mr. Patrick Fischer
1803 SE Harwell Way
Hillsboro, OR 97123-5391

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mr. Patrick Fischer

Mrs. Jamie Emin
308 Avenida La Costa
San Clemente, CA 92672-4419
(123) 456-7890

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Jamie Emin

Ms. Nusi Kumar
203 Coggins
Walnut Creek, CA 94596

May 4, 2016

Director Dan Ashe
1849 C Street, NW, Room 3359
Washington, DC 20240

Subject: Please list the seven unlisted species of pangolins as endangered under the Endangered Species Act

Dear Director Dan Ashe,

Pangolins are the most trafficked mammal in the world with an estimated one million animals illegally traded over the past decade.

29,000 illegal pangolin products were seized by U.S. authorities between 2006 and 2015, indicating that the U.S. plays a major role in the illicit international trade in these animals. Listing all pangolin species as endangered will make it illegal to trade in pangolin parts domestically and to import pangolin parts to the U.S., granting essential protections to pangolins and sending a very clear message to the international community that pangolin conservation is a top priority.

Some pangolin species have suffered population declines as much as 90 percent over the past two decades. These animals face many threats, including poaching for their scales and meat, which are trafficked mostly to Asia to satisfy the black market demand.

Pangolins need stronger protections. Please list them as endangered under the Endangered Species Act.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nusi Kumar